Desiderata

Go placidly amid the noise and haste and remember what peace there may be in silence . . .

... As for as possible without surrender be on good terms with 'all persons.
Speak your truth quietly and clearly, and listen to others, even the dull and ignorant, they too have their story . . .

Avoid loud and oggressive persons, they ore vexotions to the spirit.

If you compore yourself with others, you moy become voin ond bitter; for olwoys there will be greoter ond lesser persons thon yourself . . .

... Enjoy your achievements as well as your plans. Keep interested in your own career, however humble; it is a real possession in the changing fortunes of time. Exercise caution in your business affairs; for the world is full of trickery. But let this not blind you to what virtue there is; many persons strive for high ideals; and everywhere life is full of heroism . . .

... Be yourself

Especially do not feign affection. Neither be cynical about love; for in the face of all ordidity and disenchantment it is perennial as the grass . . .

... Take kindly the counsel of the years, gracefully surrendering the things of youth. Nurture strength of spirit to shield you in sudden misfortune. But do not distress yourself with imaginings. Many fears are born of fatigue and loneliness.

Beyond a wholesome discipline be gentle with yourself . . .

... You are a child of the universe, no less than the trees and the stars; you have a right to be here. And whether or not it is clear to you, no doubt the universe is unfolding as it should. Therefore be at peace with God, whatever your labors or aspirations, in the noisy confusion of life keep peace with your soul. With all its sham, drudgery and broken dreams, it is still a beautiful world.

Be careful.

Strive to be happy.

sitting here in this (book) microcommunity with all the lately peoplefaces with their minds protected in their bodies waiting for potential to burst — sparks to fly and soul to soar when love appears rather than an attractive face — electrochemical head trip . . . we are recycled stars — big clumps of chemicals trying so hard just to be happy.

love sharing and caring must involve all the worlds — first, second, third, fourth and real: people, trees and rocks.
Oppression must cease instead of seize.

microcommunities and world communities must get their minds together — became involved — involve becoming — always becoming rather than become

The trouble with AHS, its clients' minds and its books is that they all close more often than they open. It's hard on all those other worlds.

Don Bockler

Three years have come and gone, and although you are leaving Arlington High School, you will not be "soon forgotten." It has been a period of times filled with many memorable events made possible by your class spirit, initiative, and cooperation. May each and everyone of you enjoy success in your future endeavors.

Independent thinkers . . .

those joining clubs, groups, committees . . .
not for just formulating plans . . .
but for fellowship.

People gaining their identity — their individual values . . .
and therefore, their 'self' . . .
believing that with identity would come . . .

quality, wisdom, and strength.

Great writers . . .

Great artists . . .

Great thinkers . . . emerged from those who found solace in . . .
friendships,
beauty,
love,
and understanding . . .

Each individual is witness . . .
to the success of the past . . .
and holds the hope of the future.

There are delightful moments of mutual fulfillment in the continuous learning process, the moments we dare together, knowing we can conquer ignorance, never in fear of what is to come. On the other hand, there are moments of utter despair, when ideals falter, with students as well as teachers wondering in a seemingly hopeless maze.

May I share with you a poem I often read during those moments of despair.

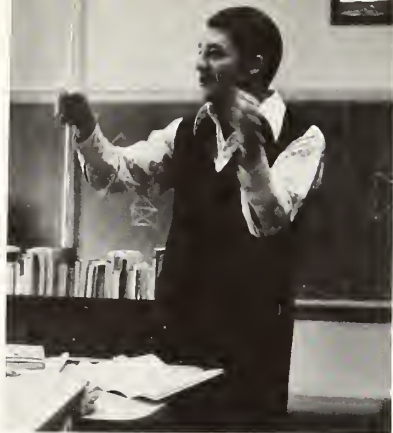

Mind

Mind in the purest play is like some bat
That beats about in caverns all alone,
Contriving by a kind of senseless wit,
Not to conclude against a wall of stone.

It has no need to falter or explore;
Darkly it knows what obstacles are there,
And so may weave and flitter, dip and soar
In perfect courses through the blockiest air.

And has this simile a like perfection?
The mind is like a bat. Precisely. Solve
That in the very happiest intellection
A graceful error may correct a cave.

Poem by Richard Wilbur Sentiment from Pouline Corrore

Days hurry by. They narrow down to a month, weeks, days, and finally: Farewell to Arlington High!

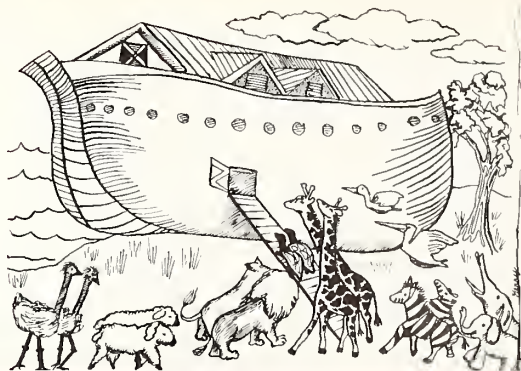

Good-bye to desks and seats, to classes, lunches in the 'Caf,' textbooks, compositions, reports, term papers, and those dreaded exams. No more of the same excuses all the way up and down for the work not done. But of all, a fond good-bye to the hectoring summons of the school bell and the slips from the Senior Office summoning culprits there.

Now it's time for commencement. This year you will hear the baccalaureate address: The solemn warnings, the forecasts, the scientific foreshadowings, the timid promises for a rosy future.

But where are you going?

Won't you miss all the hurry and scurry? Of course you will. You'll miss the shy smiles, the frowns, the nervous guffaws, and the laughter of the timid ones. You'll miss the quick flash of the eyes when recognition comes behind the forehead. You've seen that look.

Good-bye to Macbeth, and Moses and the Exodus, short story, creative writing, and that droopy stuff that rhymes, poetry. Is it really important to know if a prepositional phrase can be used as an adjective? No more précis writing, biographies, essays, or business letters.

Where are you going?

Wherever you go, whatever part of the forest, we hope that a part of us will go along with you.

Hoppy Life.

Tom Trevisoni

Feelings of happiness . . . about your joy in everyday things . . . your eagerness to laugh . . . your ability to like each other and to be happy for each other.

Feelings of sadness . . . about your loss of George Lincoln and Pauline Schiel . . . loss of their wit and deep concern.

Feelings of love . . . that fill your lives with a special quality . . . for love is the power which can alone shut out violence and overcome fear.

Feelings of thanks . . . for giving me the opportunity to know you . . . to be happy or sad with you . . . to trust you (and you, me) . . . but most of all to love you.

THE HIGH SCHOOL YEARBOOK PHOTOGRAPH

My daughter's scarcely did her credit
Though it couldn't hide her beauty
The vigorous hair arranged
Alice in Wonderland style,
Betraying the photographer's bias
Towards feminine passivity.

Passive she is not.
She has a strength and sparkle
And a glow
Which he almost succeeded
In hiding
With his inadequate
And pallid coloration.

Still — there is the likeness of her face
A handsome one Emptied of its vitality
As she struggled with the Ordinariness
Of his small vision.

EXPANDING

S.T.E.P.

Expanding . . .

Over the past few years Arlington High School has been instituting a series of programs which are geared to the expanding interests of today's youth. Most of these programs emphasize training and experience for future jobs; all the programs build the student's confidence in his or her capabilities and potential. The rewards of these courses are evident to each student, not just something vague like a grade. When they graduate they will have had the experience of working as an efficient part of a group and as an individual. Many students will have a good background in a trade or profession.

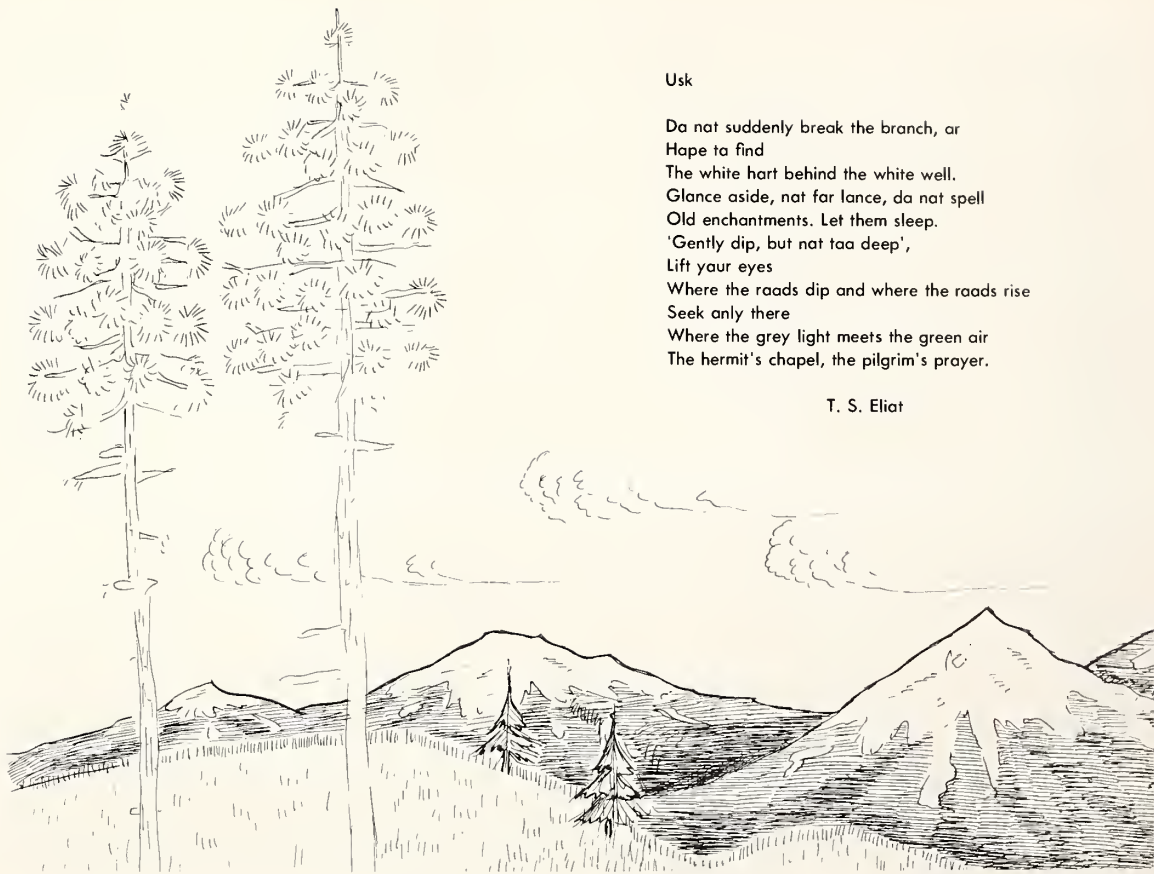

Survival

Usk

Da nat suddenly break the branch, ar Hape ta find
The white hart behind the white well.
Glance aside, nat far lance, da nat spell Old enchantments. Let them sleep.
'Gently dip, but nat taa deep', Lift your eyes
Where the raads dip and where the raads rise
Seek only there
Where the grey light meets the green air
The hermit's chapel, the pilgrim's prayer.

The Arts

Gilbert and Sullivan

Drama Club

The Arlington High School Drama Club is designed to teach everything there is to producing a hit show through learning and experience.

This year the club had one of its most memorable years, with membership reaching its highest total in the history of the club. Another first was a series of workshops teaching make-up, lighting and set design.

The entry to the State Drama Festival was "Family Album," a Victorian comedy written by playwright Noel Coward. It was superbly directed by the club's advisor Mr. Frank Roberts. It is because of his help and interest that the club has such enthusiastic members.

Art Club

The Art Club is an organization at Arlington High School that is growing larger and better every year. The club is composed of 30 members who meet twice a week to express themselves through arts and crafts. This year the club began by batiking, which is a way of decorating cloth with dye and wax. Their next venture was that of silver jewelry making. These crafts were presented at the Spring Art Fair, an annual event presented by the Art Club. Its purpose is the raising of funds for the club's activities. Under the advisanship of Mrs. Eskadal the members of the Art Club enjoyed working on their favorite arts and crafts throughout the year.

Orchestra

Madrigals

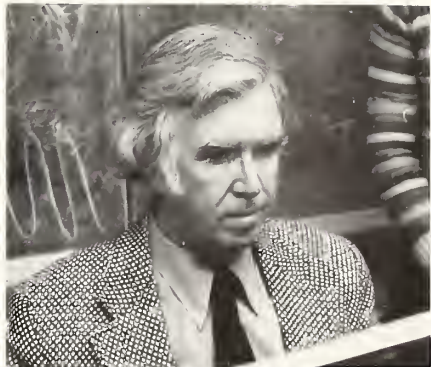

Madrigals is the newest musical group in the high school.

Thirty students from the Performing Arts Department sing music written for Madrigal groups. This group has done a superior job in interpreting and presenting the music. Madrigals, along with other groups from Performing Arts, participated in the exchange program with Scorsdole, New York.

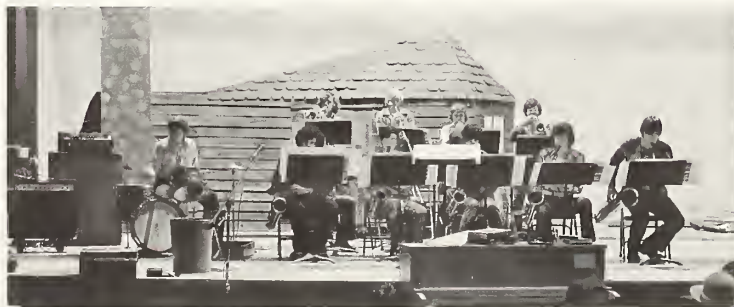

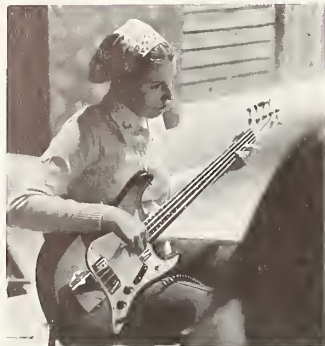

This group is directed by Andrew Smith, whom we will all worship and love to our dying days. Amen.

Student Council

Contrary to popular belief, being on Student Council is not just winning an election; it's one helluva year full of hard work, mixed emotions, successes, and failures . . . all worth the aggravation. Student Council is only as effective as the Students make it. The involvement necessary for a dynamic Council comes from not only those elected to office, but the entire Student Body. The objective of the Student Council is to form a channel of communication within the school, and the community. Our one wish for future councils is that they alleviate some of the apathy and involve all types of students within the school community, to provide a varied viewpoint.

Missing: Henry Sullivan and Julie Groom, Sports Editors; Jone Erickson, Circulation Editors; Lynn Cornelius, Copy Editor.

THE FOURTH ESTATE was created in 1974, replacing the old CHRONICLE. The reason that the paper was changed was because the new editors wanted to change the format and content of what was then, a typical high school newspaper. Well, the changes were successful. In its first year of publication, the new paper won two major awards in high school journalism; the Greater Boston High School Newspaper Association award for excellence in typography, and the New England Scholastic Press Association Award for Highest Achievement in Scholastic Editing and Publishing which made the newspaper the "Best in New England." Since its beginning, the newspaper has been dedicated to the ideals that have earned Journalism the title of "The Fourth Estate": truth, fairness, quality, and good typing. This year the newspaper dedicated its efforts to the memory of Pauline Schiel, whose hard work made the successes possible.

Math Team

A Math Team? Yes, indeed! Although not many people know about it, there is, in fact, an Arlington High School math team that is alive and well and getting better all the time. But what does the Math Team do? About five or six times a year our team competes in math-meets with other teams in the area. A person scores points for his team by doing problems in a certain time. Although Arlington has never come in first at a meet, it has never lost either!

Our faculty advisor is Miss Winnie Wahlbe who deserves special thanks for all the time and effort she has put in for the Math Team.

Chronic Illness

The Chronic Illness is a magazine devoted to brightening the days of AHS students and to stealing the Fourth Estate's business.

We have one-half inch margins at the sides, between columns, and at the top and bottom. Each page has two columns; each column is 3 3/4 inches wide and fits 34 characters and / or spaces on a pica typewriter, 42 on an elite. The paper is 8 1/2 by 11 inches.

We publish our paper as often as possible. Our printer is Gnaman Copy, which has four different locations in Harvard Square. There is one editor from each class so that there'll always be someone brainwashing AHS.
